

Vendor Spotlight: Temple Nightclub Venue

For those brides and grooms who want a green, urban-chic wedding, Temple could be just the venue for you. Opening in SOMA in September 2007, Temple, from their 89% diversion rate from landfill to their biodegradable cornstarch cups to the recycled bio-fuel oil in their kitchen, is the first green nightclub in the U.S. Dave Peterson, Director of Sales, says, “We pride ourselves in taking care of our environment and those who live in it, keeping in mind we need to leave the planet to our children, their children, and so on.”

Dave truly enjoys hosting weddings and knows all about the stress that goes along with wedding planning. For him, the best part about hosting a wedding is, “Making the bride and groom feel comfortable and stress-free. After all, it’s their day and it only comes once.” Dave also likes the challenge of hosting large corporate events - large meaning 1,100 people! Planning for that many people is mind-blowing! And he does it with grace, style, and delicious bites to boot.

If you haven't been to Temple and you're looking for a unique venue to impress your guests, especially your eco-friendly ones, definitely check it out. It's visually stunning and Dave couldn't be more of a pleasure to chit-chat and discuss your wedding ideas with.
